

IVE MADE $33,000,000 IN ONE DEAL IN SINCLAIR OIL, SAYS MRS. STINSON

Jesse Smith Was Peeved Because He Wasn't "In On It"—Daugherty Morally To Blame For Smith's Suicide, She Avers.

Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, March 26.—Five men in one deal on the stock market the fall of 1922, speculating in oil stocks, the Daugherty investigating committee was informed today by Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of the late Jesse W. Smith, the boon companion of Attorney General Daugherty.

Neither Daugherty nor Smith, however, were in on the deal, Mrs. Stinson said, and Jesse told her they were "sore" on that account.

She said Smith had told her the names of the men, but she declined to give them "until I'm cross-examined."

The story of the $33,000,000 deal was related to the committee by Mrs. Stinson after she had tearfully and dramatically accused the attorney general of being "morally responsible for Jesse Smith's suicide." Her husband committed suicide, she said, but he was "driven to it by Harry Daugherty." How this was accomplished she did not say and the committee did not press her.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, questioned Mrs. Stinson closely about the source of Smith's money in Washington. She referred to several deals, but said Jesse was "sore" about one deal which he was not "in on."

"What deal was that?"

"Jesse told me that five men in the past few days had made $33,000,000. I asked him 'were Harry and you in on that?' and he said 'no, that's what made me sore because they were friends of ours.'"

"Did he tell you the kind of deal it was?"

"Yes, a deal in Sinclair oil. It was in the fall of 1922."

"Do you know the five men?"

"I can't remember."

"Was E. B. McLean one of them?"

"I'm not sure."

Senator Jones asked her to tell the details of the deal.

"I'd rather have that come out in cross-examination," she replied. "I don't want to volunteer to tell about these matters which do not directly concern me."

"Where did he tell you about this great deal?" asked Ashurst.

"Jesse and I were at home in Washington Court house," she said. "He remarked that he had lost money continuously on the stock market and I said, 'why don't you stop it, if you lose money all the time?' He said 'I did.'"

Then he said, "Just think, five fellows made $33,000,000 on a stock deal in a few days."

"Did he mention any names?"

"Yes, he did."

"Go ahead, please," demanded Moses.

"I don't like to."

"We would like to know especially if McLean was in on that deal," Brookhart said.

A buzz of comment swept through the crowd. The committee conferred and decided to consider her refusal to testify later in executive session.

While she waited the committee's decision, Mrs. Stinson idly powdered her nose.

Brookhart then introduced a batch of telegrams that passed between Smith and Mrs. Stinson.

Mrs. Stinson told the committee that in the spring of 1923, Smith agreed to buy a $100,000 hotel in Columbus for her.

"He wouldn't have agreed to that unless he had the money," she added.

"Have you told any member of the committee about this $33,000,000 deal?"

"No, I just touched on it to Senator Wheeler but I did not tell him any more than I told here."

Mrs. Stinson was then excused. Brookhart explaining Senator Wheeler wanted to be present during the cross-examination.

Washington, March 26.—The investigation into Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty by the Wheeler-Brookhart committee, started off with a fresh sensation today when Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of the late Jesse W. Smith, boon friend of Daugherty, testified that "Jesse committed suicide, but was driven to it by Harry Daugherty."

"I consider Harry Daugherty morally responsible for the death of Jesse Smith," said the witness dramatically.

"I was not present when he killed himself, but in view of the way in which he put his house in order, I am convinced he took his own life."

Mrs. Stinson's reference to Smith's suicide was made in connection with an investigation launched quietly by the committee a few days ago to determine the circumstances surrounding Smith's death. This investigation was started because of rumors and insinuations that Smith may have met with foul play, although at the time of his death there was no intimation or hint that it was anything but self destruction.

Smith killed himself a year ago in the apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel, which he jointly shared with the attorney general. He was alone at the time, Daugherty having spent the night at the White House with the late President Harding.

The bullet wound that caused Smith's death, Mrs. Stinson said, was clear, and "there was a great

Crinigan Not Kept Very Busy

Taxpayers Urged to Take Their Problems to Him—No One Here Reported Over $60,000 Income.

Agent Richard Crinigan of the State Income Tax Bureau, who has been detailed to Kingston court house for March 17 to April 9 has not been kept constantly engaged by taxpayers from this vicinity.

District Director John G. Malone of the Albany district urges taxpayers to avail themselves of assistance from the department expert, because experience indicates that each year persons filing returns are confronted with problems which are promptly solved when presented to the representative of the bureau. It should be understood that no charge of any sort is exacted for this information or for the taking of the affidavit by the agent, who is assigned solely by the district director for the assistance of taxpayers in completing their returns before the final rush of the closing period, which is prior to April 15th.

It is interesting to note that of the 2,967 returns filed in Ulster county in 1922 on income for the calendar year 1921, there were 48 in the $10,000 to $15,000 class, five who reported earnings of between $25,000 and $30,000, while five disclosed income of over $50,000 to $60,000, and none in the $100,000 or over income tax group.

Brutal Murder On Staten Island

Young Mother, Her Car Stalled, Accused Lift From Stranger Who Stabs and Shoots Her.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, March 26.—One of the most intense manhunts in the city's history was in full swing today for the slayer of Mrs. Maud Bauer, 31, who was stabbed and shot to death by a motorist when she resisted his attempt to attack her on a lonely road in Staten Island.

Every exit from the scene of the brutal murder was closed by the authorities this morning. Police foot in uniform, on horseback, on motorcycles and in police automobiles scoured the countryside. Detectives by the score joined the chase.

The best clue the authorities had was that the slayer drove a small closed car.

"One of the most baffling homicides ever committed on Staten Island," was the characterization of District Attorney Fack.

Mrs. Bauer, who lived at Port Richmond, was slain fifteen minutes after she had left her mother's side to accept a lift from the man driving the sedan. Mrs. Bauer's car had become stalled, she had left it and was looking for a garage when the slayer drove along and offered to assist her.

Back in the stalled car beside the mother of the victim, were the victim's two children, Katherine, six years old and Helen, three.

Police questioned one man, an insurance agent, but he was released when he proved an alibi.

The slain mother's mother, Mrs. George Pero, said her daughter started to walk up the road after the car had become stalled to get a rope.

Mrs. Bauer had gone about seventy-five feet along a deserted stretch of road when she hailed a man driving in her direction in a sedan.

She returned to her mother and said: "This gentleman is going to take me to get the rope."

They then drove off.

Twenty minutes later a man was seen driving in a sedan from the direction in which Mrs. Bauer had gone.

Three boys, who had been riding along the road on bicycles, found Mrs. Bauer's body stretched beside the road, near a small clump of trees. Her clothing was in disorder. Blood was flowing from a stab wound in the throat. There was a bullet wound in her abdomen. There were no signs of a struggle.

When the victim's husband was informed of the slaying he collapsed.

VANDALS STEAL CITY HOSPITAL CROCUSES

The Garden Club of this city recently planted some beautiful yellow and purple crocuses on the lawn in front of the Kingston City Hospital. The flowers are now in bloom and attract considerable attention. In fact they attract so much attention that some vandals enter the hospital grounds and help themselves to the flowers. Not content with picking the flowers they pull up the plants, roots and all. The flowers were planted to improve the appearance of the lawn and are not meant for folks to help themselves to. Tuesday a man who lives in the neighborhood climbed up the wall and picked a handful of the crocuses. When he saw a nurse come out to remonstrate with him he started running across Broadway and was nearly knocked down by an automobile.

Ellsworth Files Claim for $1,100

A claim for $1,100 has been filed against the state of New York by Harry Ellsworth, Port Ewen, who alleges that March 24, 1922, while driving in a horse drawn vehicle along a highway in Ulster county, his horse caught its hoof in an iron grating, threw him from the vehicle and caused him to suffer injuries. The claimant asks $100 because of the injury of his horse, which he points out was unable to work for a number of weeks and $1,000 for his own injuries.

CONGRESSMAN QUINN HAS THREE MAJOR ADDITIONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, March 26.—Congressman Percy E. Quinn, Democrat, Mississippi, is addicted to a corn cob pipe, chewing gum, and impassioned oratory.

Seated in the house, deprived of his pipe and with mouth full of gum, he aroused by debate on the army appropriation bill. Hastily joining in the fray he carefully "parked" his gum on the reading stand and turned loose with burning words and violent gestures.

The cud fascinated Congressman Mac Lafferty, Republican of California. After the cud had shifted position several times from the force of blows by Quinn on the stand Mac Lafferty shouted a warning:

"If you are not careful you will lose your gum."

Ignoring the interruption, Quinn closed with a grand peroration and was half way from the hall when he remembered his gum. To the accompaniment of yells, cheers and roars of laughter, Quinn returned to the stand, rescued the cud, and resumed operation on it.

Also, he has had two private detective agencies cooperating with police in an effort to run down a blackmailer, whose identity Weatherbee thinks he knows.

Weatherbee, who for 12 years was president of Arnold, Constable and Company, a year and a half ago went into business for himself. The man he suspects of blackmailing him he discharged for forgery of his signature to checks. The man, it was said, harbored a grudge.

Next Campaign To Be Bitter

Plenty of Material for Both Parties—Republican National Committee Issues Most Scathing Statement Yet Seen.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, March 26.—The political campaign of 1924 that will get under way with a whoop as soon as falling gavel marks the close of the two great nominating conventions probably will set new high records.

The shouting and bickering, charge and counter charge, which for months has kept Washington in a turbulent state, constitute merely the prelude to the full chorus that will swing into action in July, according to all indications here today.

Both the Republican and Democratic national committees, upon which devolve the task of informing the electorate concerning the merits of their respective parties and the demerits of the opposition, are in full swing of spring training for the session, with pencils poised and dripping harsh words.

Typical of the war of phrases that already is well under way is a scathing statement issued by the Republican national committee today, which for sheer force and warmth of feeling outclassed anything that has yet emanated from the headquarters of either committee. It was in reply to a number of Democratic statements recently issued, which had for the moral "throw the rascals out."

It assailed with vitriolic bitterness the oil and Daugherty investigations, and their gulling spirits, the two Democratic senators from Montana, Walsh and Wheeler. Under the heading of "the senate's rogues' gallery," it commended on the "jealous rivalry between the two committees" and said:

"The Walsh committee held the boards for quite a while, counting that day lost which did not see some new slander broadcast from its committee room."

"The Wheeler committee got a late start in the free for all slime slinging contest, but with the very valuable aid of the two blackmailers, a couple of self confessed hoodlums, it sprung ahead of the Walsh committee."

"Young Wheeler put it all over his political godfather, Walsh of Montana, in grabbing the first page of the newspapers. But as soon as the tactics of the Wheeler committee became evident, the Walsh committee came right back, and at this writing is one train robber ahead in the contest. At Jennings's contrivance is supposed to be political gossip he obtained from a politician who was killed in a drunken quarrel with his paramour."

"If the innovation of proving honest men and public officials guilty of high crimes by introducing testimony of convicts and ex-convicts, forgers, bribe takers, murderers, train robbers and other criminals is to be followed, then there is no end in sight of the present investigations until all the inmates of our penitentiaries have been put on the stand."

"Jesse James and Calamity Jane and all the other cut throats of a generation died too soon. Some of them ascended the gallows and met a felon's death, when, had they lived in these times, they might have taken a de luxe trip to Washington at the expense of the taxpayers paid out of senate funds."

"Arriving in the nation's capital they would have become the center of attraction, shown deference, photographed in all poses, taken night joy rides in senatorial automobiles and brought their careers to a climax by ascending the witness chair before some committee to spill their venom and their slander to the profit and glory of the Democratic party, and the personal gratification of the political blackguards who have made the United States a pool of political filth over which floats the sum of their own putrid motives."

Washington is eagerly awaiting the Democratic retort to this Republican broadside, and asking itself incidentally, if this is the March prelude to the campaign, what will the campaign itself bring once it gets under way?

Sentiment Among Deputies Against Drastic Financial Reforms Culminates in Adverse Vote on Pensions—Premier Ruled During Stormy and Comparatively Long Period.

Coolidge Still Ahead in S. D.

Leads Johnson by Less Than 2,000 and California Has Excellent Chance on Further Returns.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Sioux Falls, S. D., March 26.—The first returns announced from the Republican state headquarters here today gave Coolidge 20,914 and Johnson 18,840 from 598 of the 1,768 precincts in the presidential primary vote.

Earlier returns, compiled by newspapers, have given Coolidge a slightly smaller lead in a larger vote from 547 precincts. Returns from the rural precincts, now coming in, are generally expected to better Johnson's showing.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 26.—With two-thirds of the Republican vote believed accounted for, President Coolidge held a diminishing lead of less than two thousand votes over Senator Johnson in the South Dakota primary returns early today. McAdoo supporters claimed a two to one victory in the Democratic primary.

Although more than 1,200 rural precincts have not reported they will represent only about one-third of the "rural vote," as the cities recorded a comparatively heavy vote, while the bad weather cut down the farmer vote considerably.

The precincts reporting were in the cities, which gave Coolidge a much heavier lead in the earlier returns. Early today, 547 of the states 1,768 precincts had reported.

Coolidge, 23,687.
Johnson, 21,798.

In the fight for the Republican nomination to the United States Senate, Governor McMaster, who campaigned for Senator Johnson, lost Senator Sterling by 3,587 votes.

Returns from 567 precincts gave: McMaster, 29,749.
Sterling, 20,152.

It was believed that between 65,000 and 70,000 votes were polled in the Republican contest, the rain and snow which fell throughout election day cutting down the vote.

Headquarters of both candidates for the Republican presidential endorsement predicted victory this morning.

"Young Wheeler put it all over his political godfather, Walsh of Montana, in grabbing the first page of the newspapers. But as soon as the tactics of the Wheeler committee became evident, the Walsh committee came right back, and at this writing is one train robber ahead in the contest. At Jennings's contrivance is supposed to be political gossip he obtained from a politician who was killed in a drunken quarrel with his paramour."

"If the innovation of proving honest men and public officials guilty of high crimes by introducing testimony of convicts and ex-convicts, forgers, bribe takers, murderers, train robbers and other criminals is to be followed, then there is no end in sight of the present investigations until all the inmates of our penitentiaries have been put on the stand."

"Jesse James and Calamity Jane and all the other cut throats of a generation died too soon. Some of them ascended the gallows and met a felon's death, when, had they lived in these times, they might have taken a de luxe trip to Washington at the expense of the taxpayers paid out of senate funds."

"Arriving in the nation's capital they would have become the center of attraction, shown deference, photographed in all poses, taken night joy rides in senatorial automobiles and brought their careers to a climax by ascending the witness chair before some committee to spill their venom and their slander to the profit and glory of the Democratic party, and the personal gratification of the political blackguards who have made the United States a pool of political filth over which floats the sum of their own putrid motives."

Washington is eagerly awaiting the Democratic retort to this Republican broadside, and asking itself incidentally, if this is the March prelude to the campaign, what will the campaign itself bring once it gets under way?

Next Campaign To Be Bitter

Plenty of Material for Both Parties—Republican National Committee Issues Most Scathing Statement Yet Seen.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, March 26.—The political campaign of 1924 that will get under way with a whoop as soon as falling gavel marks the close of the two great nominating conventions probably will set new high records.

The shouting and bickering, charge and counter charge, which for months has kept Washington in a turbulent state, constitute merely the prelude to the full chorus that will swing into action in July, according to all indications here today.

Both the Republican and Democratic national committees, upon which devolve the task of informing the electorate concerning the merits of their respective parties and the demerits of the opposition, are in full swing of spring training for the session, with pencils poised and dripping harsh words.

Typical of the war of phrases that already is well under way is a scathing statement issued by the Republican national committee today, which for sheer force and warmth of feeling outclassed anything that has yet emanated from the headquarters of either committee. It was in reply to a number of Democratic statements recently issued, which had for the moral "throw the rascals out."

It assailed with vitriolic bitterness the oil and Daugherty investigations, and their gulling spirits, the two Democratic senators from Montana, Walsh and Wheeler. Under the heading of "the senate's rogues' gallery," it commended on the "jealous rivalry between the two committees" and said:

"The Walsh committee held the boards for quite a while, counting that day lost which did not see some new slander broadcast from its committee room."

"The Wheeler committee got a late start in the free for all slime slinging contest, but with the very valuable aid of the two blackmailers, a couple of self confessed hoodlums, it sprung ahead of the Walsh committee."

"Young Wheeler put it all over his political godfather, Walsh of Montana, in grabbing the first page of the newspapers. But as soon as the tactics of the Wheeler committee became evident, the Walsh committee came right back, and at this writing is one train robber ahead in the contest. Spring Gowns Are in Great Variety lace and Ruffles and Simple, Severe Costumes on Style Sheet.

Some women have a penchant for selecting the right thing in clothes and perfect genius for wearing them all, observes a fashion correspondent in the New York Herald. One about the other is a useless gift. The experts do a large share of the sartorial work in the first instance, and the final decision rests with the individual. In the matter of wearing clothes after the choice is once made, the careful attention to details has more than nine-tenths to do with it. This season, if ever, women thus freed will have an opportunity to express themselves.

Those who look their best in graceful clothes with lace and ruffles and those that lack definition, and women who seem most at home in simple, severe types of costume will both find variety, even in their own particular mode without a bit of difficulty.

Reports from Paris of the spring gowns read very differently from those of last season, when nearly every house emphasized the fact that there would be very little change, although putting forth a few tentative innovations. This season the changes in the general silhouette as well as in the length of skirts are pronounced in serious vein.

That there is a marked diversity of opinion is evident. What could be more diametrically opposite than the extremely simple tailleur and the repeated use of the Oriental and even lace ruffled dresses for afternoon. In some of the houses the bolero jacket is shown and others "inclose to the Chinese or Indo-Chinese," as it is called, a medium long coat of loose cut, sometimes fastening at one side, and always with a straight band collar.

Inclines to Oriental Note.

Lecile inclines to this Oriental note, displaying coats and wraps in this manner for both day wear and for evening. A china-blue poplin suit, which she created, has a trimming of Chinese embroidery and it matched with a mandarin toque. Even in this collection one finds that there is diversity, for there are also youthful designs in tailored suits and dresses of lace for afternoon, that have been dyed in dark tones to make them suitable and practical for day wear. Browns and blacks are notable in these dresses.

Straight sheathlike dresses have circular flounces at the bottom and tunics that are long and straight are slashed at the sides to make walking possible as well as to show the slip of some contrasting material. In some sheath dresses which are also partially tunics an opening extends from the neckline at the back, hem, allowing a foundation to contrast with the sheath. It may also extend a few inches below the upper tunic.

Margaine Lacroix shows many frocks employing the shaded materials as a color scheme. These are in lace and in crepes and other dresses and costumes are reported to show many interesting trappings—among others, mother-of-pearl sequins, marabou, fine ribbon, braids and some beads. For evening fabrics dull gold cloth and copper tissue are mentioned as well as the more usual silver cloth.

One of the Most Recent and Possibly Rather Extreme Tunic Models, With Long Vest of Lingerie and Peculiar Gathered Section in Front.

From these and various sources the impression grows that one may add to the variety in the wardrobe without necessarily subtracting, and that a few minor points in the changing mode are fairly well established unless the larger houses will have some unusual surprises in store.

Black Prevails Over Brown. Black, it is quite certain, will be more often seen in the new models than brown, although a few makers still insist on the superiority of the latter, and one maker shows costumes in this color shading the details through golden brown to the palest cream color—it must be admitted with particular success.

The alpaca, which are being well received, are most interesting in the changeable weaves, which are usually banded or otherwise trimmed, with plain material. Where all the feather trimming is to come from that the season predicts, is something that probably the makers knew more about than we do, but marabou, clipped ostrich and clipped dove feathers are shown on the model gowns and are sure to be copied by both New York and Paris.

Capes in shorter lengths continue to appear and small wraps or coats of varying lengths are almost certain to be shown with each dress, for it seems important with dresses showing two contrasting tones to simplify the costume by having the wrap match one of the other of the fabrics.

One of the New York houses exhibits a model which follows closely the lines of those featured in the early collections in Paris. It is a sheath of black chantilly lace open in the back over a black satin foundation which shows a few inches at the hem. The lace is banded all the way around with plain net and the neckline is banded in burnt orange satin tied with a bow and two long ends at the back. At each side of the waist the sheath is attached to the foundation, giving a slightly bloused line.

Shortened Skirt More Than Rumor.

Decidedly the shortened skirtline is more than a mere rumor, for reports are current concerning those actually seen on Paris streets. Discounting the fact that mannequins from the couturiers are in the habit of wearing models in public to introduce them, we are told that all of American skirts are much longer than those seen abroad. One model was mentioned in particular as cut so short that it was only a few inches below the knee, and the opinion was expressed at the same time that skirts worn here would not be in this extremely exaggerated form.

Predictions are never safe where fashions are involved, but it is comparatively reasonable to state that it will be several months before any such transformation takes place in the costumes seen on New York avenues.

As a matter of fact, during the last period of shortening skirts, followed swiftly by longer ones, the best-dressed women were the ones who varied their skirt lengths the least. Possibly with the tendency to vary the modes for afternoon and evening from those for morning and street wear there will be a variety of skirt lengths for the different hours. This, however, would have to be our own interpretation of the mode, for those of Paris make are as short for evening as at any other time, if not shorter.

Black Satin in Evidence.

The black satin frocks, which are most in evidence just at this time both here and abroad, continue to appear in many different types, those for afternoon being shown in soft gathered and simple tucked designs and for the morning tailored models are spoken of as being as severely cut as the simplest cloth suit.

Nothing could be smarter than the ruffled blouses of sheer white material to wear with the suits, and again for models where the lingerie note might be too fussy one has some very new collars and cuffs of satin from which to select.

An entertaining model in black satin shows a new arrangement of tucks, pintucks being placed at graduated spaces horizontally from neck to hem. As the closing is at one side, a few of the tucks are turned to follow this edge, accomplished by the use of an applied tucked band.

How the large number of designs have been skillfully evolved which show no wasteline is a matter of wonder, for comparatively few of the newer models seem to have any demarcation at all, or if a slight blousing is used, the grille is sometimes absent either back or front and then subdued almost to extinction.

A straight close-fitting chemise is apt to be combined with ruffles or skirt joined to it, at almost any point from the hipline to the knee, triple-plaited ruffles, circular ruffles or plaited hands being the most frequently seen. Extreme, perhaps, but undeniably smart.

In Yellow and White Crepe

A chemise dress in yellow and white crepe with three flat sections set in at the front of the skirt has a sleeveless jacket of yellow wool loosely knit and bound with white. A white hat is shown with this model, having a slightly scoop brim large enough to be called a smart hat.

Big Advertisers To Ban Road Sign

The Standard Oil Company of New York Tuesday announced its intention to abandon all highway billboards where they were objectionable or marred scenic effect. Herbert L. Pratt, president, said the company would confine itself to boards at garages and service stations. The removal of the last sign was expected within eighteen months, when the last contract had expired, he said.

"It is the desire of the management of this company," said President Pratt, "to cooperate in every way with the various civic organizations and women's clubs in its territory, which are seeking to improve the natural beauties of the highways."

The Standard Oil Company in New York had also instructed its architects to prepare plans for model booths along highways which would be inexpensive and in keeping with surroundings. These plans would be furnished free to any concessionaire upon application.

Mrs. W. L. Lawton, Chairman of the National Committee for Restriction of Outdoor Advertising, of which Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin is secretary, said Tuesday night fourteen other large national advertisers had pledged themselves to abolish highway billboards. From her home in Glens Fall, N. Y., she gave them as Kirkman & Son, soap, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, Washburn-Crosby Company, Standard Oil Company of California, Champion Spark Plug Company, B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, Sun Oil Company, Hood Rubber Company, Ajax Rubber Company, Ward Baking Company, Dodge Brothers, Gulf Refining Company, the Fleischmann Company, yeast. The Texas Company had given partial endorsement of the committee's proposal to restrict signs, according to Mrs. Lawton.

Ernest Hopkinson, vice-president of the United States Tire Company, said the action of the Standard Oil Company might prove to be "a good lead" in crystallizing national advertising sentiment along the same line. His own corporation had not yet taken up the matter, he said. The American Tobacco Company is opposed to the idea, said George W. Hill, vice-president.

Truth Stranger Than Fiction

How would you like to spend your working hours handling gold? Miss Mary A. O'Leary, expert worker in the bindery at the government printing office at Washington, has that kind of job. In the accompanying photograph she is shown laying gold from a ribbon of pure gold 67 feet long, an inch and a half wide and so thin that the lightest paper would seem heavy by comparison.

Miss O'Leary is preparing the gold for some of the 1,400,000 cloth bound books that are issued every year by the government. Many thousands of these books bear the name, stamped into the cloth, of the Senator, Representative or other recipient obtaining them. Gold, imitation gold or white foil is used for the lettering. The process which Miss O'Leary is using is one developed recently, and is regarded as a great improvement over the old process by which the leaf was taken from the books and cut into required sizes.

The value of the gold, imitation gold and foil used in lettering these volumes is about $14,000 a year. Under the administration of George H. Carter, the present Public Printer, great economies have been effected in the use of foil and a superior imitation gold leaf on work which heretofore was stamped in pure gold. However, covers for the bound copies of the Congressional Record are stamped in pure gold. Covers for the Census volumes are stamped in aluminum leaf. Both of these publications are bound in heavy quality of buckram.

In preparing covers for government publications more than 270,000 yards of book cloth and buckram, worth $61,000, are used in a year's time.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, March 26.—Sunday, March 23rd, founders day, of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was a eventful day in the Methodist Episcopal Church in Ellenville. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society had sent out invitations in the form of a little umbrella, symbolic of the first missionary meeting, the day on which this meeting was held, being a very rainy day. In response to the numerous invitations sent out, a large number of women children and several men appeared at the church at 7:30, the appointed hour, for festivities to begin. Mrs. Frank J. Potter, the president of the society, having been called out of town, Miss Nellie Newkirk, the vice-president presided at the meeting, which was opened by a well-known hymn, followed by a prayer by the pastor, the Rev. Charles A. Dann. A duet was given by Miss John Burlison and Mrs. William Brechall, prayers on given topics were offered, and a little play was acted out by Mrs. Charles A. Dann and Miss Nellie Newkirk, which was very pleasing. Next came the part of the program, which was given over to the Junior Societies of Missionary work. Several recitations were given, a dialogue and a very pretty march and song by both the King's Heralds and the Little Light Bearers. Mrs. George Mitter, the superintendent of the Little Light Bearers, the primary society, explained the work of the children and told of the work they had planned for the coming year. Mrs. Daniel Vanderlin then explained the work of the King's Heralds of which society she is the leader, and told of the work which this society had in view for the coming year. The program closed with another hymn, familiar to all. Following the program, supper was served by a committee appointed for the same, which was enjoyed by all who were fortunate enough to be able to remain to served by members of the Standard Bearers, the young women's branch of the Missionary Society. After the supper, the regular Epworth League meeting was held, with Miss Bernice Fitzgerald in charge. At 7:30 everyone assembled upstairs in the church for the evening service. This service was in charge of the Standard Bearers. Mrs. Allen Potter announced the various numbers of the program, which were given as follows: Opening hymn by the congregation, followed by prayer by the pastor, the Rev. Charles A. Dann.

The children of the King's Heralds and Little Light Bearers Societies then sang a song entitled, "Jesus Loves the Little Children Round the World." This was followed by a play entitled "The Voices of the Women," a missionary play given by a number of the Standard Bearers. Following is the cast of characters: The Dreamer, Mrs. Max Taylor; The Mohammedan Woman, of Malaysia, Evelyn Dann; The Woman of China, Marie Fallardeau; The Woman of Africa, Mary Coons; The Woman of India, Augusta Johnson; The Hindu Woman, Grace Mills; The Child Widow, Adele McDowell; The Woman of Korea, Thelma Tinsley; The Woman of Japan, Mrs. Deyo Johnson; Conscience, Emma R. Johnson. The girls were all dressed in costumes of their native lands and gave their parts very expressively. Miss Jennie McDowell recited "A Missionary Plea" very effectively, after which came a song by the congregation. Following this a duet was sung by the Misses Sadie Constant and Mae Potter, the chorus of which was sung by the choir. The offering was taken up by Helen Jensen, Carol Stevens, Adele McDowell and Mary Dann. Mrs. Deyo Johnson read a letter from Miss Dorothy Keeney, who is a teacher in a school in Fuchu, China. The next number on the program was a duet by Mrs. Marion Fordham and Mrs. Deyo W. Johnson, after which Miss Gladys Schoonmaker sang a solo. Next came an organ solo by Frank J. Campbell. The program closed with another hymn by the congregation, a very pretty and effectual evening being enjoyed by all.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald is not expected to deal harshly with the Irish Free State because men in uniform fired into a group of British Coast Artillerymen, killing one and wounding others. MacDonald believes severe action would play into the hands of the malcontents. Martin Littleton, New York attorney and former Member of Congress, told the Senate investigating Committee it would be a "monstrous outrage" to compel Harry F. Sinclair to testify in view of the legal actions he is facing. General John J. Pershing has emerged from six weeks' seclusion in France and has been received by Premier Poincare in Paris. He is said to have been writing a book on the World War. Niels Gron, famous Danish diplomat, who lived for years in New York, was fatally injured by jumping from a window in Copenhagen during a fit of nervous depression. Eugene Dennis, famous A. J. Carlson, Kan., psychic, who claims to read minds at will, has been found guilty in New York City of fortune telling. Freda Haenne, 23 years old, of Youngstown, O., claims to be the youngest great aunt in the world. Miss Haenne's sister is Mrs. William Thorne, the mother of Mrs. George Childers, who is Miss Haenne's niece. Mrs. Childers is the mother of a son, who is Miss Haenne's grand nephew.

NEW WAY TO BANISH RHEUMATIC PAINS DISCOVERED BY ALESSANDRO VOLTA

Rids You of Rheumatic Pain Without Drugs or Medicines

Until recently, the real cause of Rheumatism has been a scientific inquiry. And naturally, the old-fashioned methods of treatment with internal remedies were uncertain and sometimes dangerous. Now it has been definitely established that rheumatic pains are caused in many cases by the absorption of poisons into the blood.

Alessandro Volta, the well-known physician, for whom the electric volt was named, has produced an entirely new and revolutionary method of treatment for Rheumatism. He discovered a scientific combination of certain ingredients that produces a fine powder which, when shaken into the shoes or stockings is intended to be immediately absorbed into the blood. This is due, no doubt to the fact that the soles of the feet contain 10 times as many pores to the square inch as are found in other parts of the body.

He has called this powder Volta. Its use has given immediate relief in many instances, from the terrible crippling, torturing pain even in stubborn, long-standing cases.

The use of Volta powder has demonstrated such astonishing results in literally thousands of cases, many of which were considered hopeless, that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense Volta to rheumatic sufferers in their city with an unequalled guarantee to return the full purchase price of the first box in any case where the rheumatic pains are not wonderfully relieved.

All who suffer from rheumatic pains, no matter how long-standing their case may be, should take immediate advantage of this liberal offer. You can get Volta powder with guarantee from: McElride Drug Store, W. B. Eltinge, Mahen & Walker, Bonanza Pharmacy, Weber's Pharmacy, Connelly Drug Co.

Change in M. E. Rural Churches

East Kingston M. E. Church Is To Have Its Own Pastor—Eddyville and Rifton Vote To Increase Pastor's Salary $200 and Unite in a Charge.

The quarterly conference of the Eddyville, Rifton and East Kingston churches was held at Rifton on Sunday afternoon last and was largely attended by representatives from each point.

After the transaction of routine business, the separation of East Kingston from the other points was discussed at length. Dr. Grlaton, district superintendent, stated if each point would increase the pastor's salary $200, he would permit the change to be made.

It was finally decided to accept the terms offered, and the new plan will go into effect early in April. This will give East Kingston a morning service, and its own pastor. Eddyville and Rifton will be united in a charge, and have a pastor resident at Eddyville.

The parsonage at Eddyville will be repaired and made habitable, and a shower held soon to supply the necessary furniture for housekeeping. Old New York friends will be invited to contribute toward this desired end in the near future.

Dogs for Food

The dog meat which enters into the history of the Chinese is obtained from a special race, raised for the purpose, of which the characteristic is the color of the tongue. That organ should be of a blue-black color. These dogs are fed on milk and rice for about two months until they reach a certain weight. The number of edible dogs eaten annually in China is estimated at 5,000,000.

METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY—NEW YORK

Biggest in the World, More Assets, More Policyholders, More Insurance in force, More new Insurance each year

A MUTUAL COMPANY—INCORPORATED BY THE STATE OF NEW YORK

One person in every six in the United States and Canada is a holder of a Metropolitan policy—one of the safest forms of investment.

In 1923 the Metropolitan grew faster than any other life insurance company in the world; grew in income—in assets—and in the effectiveness of its campaign for better health for the whole country.

The Metropolitan sends trained nurses to the homes of thousands of Industrial (i. e. weekly premium) policyholders when they are sick. In 1923 these nurses made 2,482,919 visits.

While the average life span in the general population of the United States is 5 1/2 years greater than it was 11 years ago, the life span of the Metropolitan policyholders of the Metropolitan increased nearly 8 1/2 years in the same interval. This greater gain has resulted in large part from the Metropolitan's Health Service.

During 1923 the Metropolitan distributed 33,790,840 booklets and pamphlets dealing with health, general welfare and longer life. The total number of pieces distributed to date amounts to 305,990,507.

The Metropolitan arranges for free periodic health examinations for holders of Ordinary policies. Among those who availed themselves of this privilege, the death rate was found to be 28% lower than was expected for the group.

The Metropolitan cooperates with the companies to which it has issued group insurance for their employees—cooperates not only in giving insurance protection but also to promote better health, better working conditions, better living conditions and happier social conditions.

Life insurance, which cares for the home and family, is born of a deep sense of responsibility. When millions of people join in a mutual sharing of this responsibility the result is the splendid picture shown in the 1923 report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Never before has the world seen such a Business Statement not had such an opportunity to look into the hearts of men and women, and to find there—Kindness.

Second Honor For Cardinals

Ancient Program in Rituals Accompanied Conferment of Red Mosaic and the Biretta on Hayes and Mundelein.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rome, March 26.—The second of the three consistorial honors for the two new American princes of the Catholic church—Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, and Cardinal Hayes, of New York—was paid today with the conferment of the red mosaic and the biretta by Pope Pius XI in the ancient consistory hall of the Vatican.

The red hat of the cardinalate, which is distinct from the biretta, which is conferred upon the American cardinals in St. Peter's Cathedral tomorrow at a public consistory. The ceremonies today imposed the status of seniority upon Cardinal Mundelein.

An ancient program in rituals was followed, making a most imposing scene.

Arriving at the Vatican about thirty minutes before the opening of the ceremonies the two honored American prelates ascended the great marble staircases to the chamber of the papal secretary of state—Cardinal Gasparri. There they waited while the pope and his court entered Consistory Hall. The pontiff ascended the papal throne with its gorgeous canopy of purple. Round him the cardinals making up the court were grouped in a semi-circle. Members of the Swiss guard, in their brilliant uniforms, were grouped far in the rear.

The whole scene made a solemn, impressive and beautiful picture, the ceremonial robes of subdued Lenten colors, blending with the multi-colored reflections from the priceless art works upon the walls of the chamber.

Monsignor Respighi then summoned Cardinals Mundelein and Cardinal Hayes, who approached the papal throne through the semi-circular court accompanied by Cardinal Gasparri. The two American prelates wore violet robes, lined with crimson to signify their elevation to the cardinalate.

Cardinal Mundelein's name was the first to be called, as he is the ranking cardinal. He approached the throne, knelt three times and then kissed the pope's foot. Then, aided by the prefect of ceremonies, the pontiff invested the cardinal with the rosetta, which is a short cape worn by members of the members of the cardinalate. Afterward the pope placed the biretta, a small skull cap symbolic of the cardinalate, upon Cardinal Mundelein's head.

All this while Cardinal Hayes had been standing apart. His name was called and he advanced going through the same ceremonies as his brother cardinal.

The two prelates arose from a kneeling posture, uncovered their heads and kissed the pontiff's hand. They bowed low, but did not kneel as they now possessed the dignity of cardinals.

Then Cardinal Mundelein, having seniority, addressed the pontiff and his court expressing gratitude for the high honor conferred upon himself and his colleague. He said that he and his brother cardinal felt themselves unworthy of such a signal honor and that they considered their elevation evidence of the Catholic church's benevolence towards their country.

Pope Pius XI in reply said it is a significant gesture of the church's gratitude for the generosity of Americans in behalf of suffering humanity. He added that it was really the merits of the archbishops of the Chicago and New York dioceses that prompted him to enrich the Sacred College with their counsels.

The pontiff bestowed his blessing upon the new cardinals and the solemn ceremony was at an end. The cardinals stood while the papal court retired from the chamber.

Cardinal Mundelein and Cardinal Hayes were later received in private audience by the pope. Then they visited Cardinal Gasparri the papal secretary of state.

The whole scene was as impressive as though lifted from a picture of the Middle Ages.

Among the guests were Rector O'Hearn of the American College, the vice rector and pupils of the college whose youth lent life to the whole picture. Most of the prelates were far beyond middle age. Others present were Bishop Walsh, the Rev. Father Sheel and the Rev. Father Donohough, secretaries to the two new cardinals, and their entire suites.

The male lay guests were attired in even dress and the women wore heavy black veils over their heads, neck and shoulders.

The pope throughout the ceremonies wore a white robe with a red cloak. The scarlet papal throne was set at the end of a long aisle under a canopy of purple. It was flanked by two doors covered with red brocade. The monsignors entered from the right door. The two cardinals entered from the other. The entrance of the pope was announced by heralds and he was escorted by members of the noble guard wearing golden helmets.

The plans will be worked out by Chief of Police J. Allan Wood and Scout Executive G. Henry Nesslage.

At the last meeting of the common council the danger of children being injured by traffic at street intersections near the schools was brought out by the introduction of several resolutions calling for the police commissioners to appoint traffic officers near several of the schools.

Mayor Block presided at the meeting with Fire Commissioners Lahl, Eltinge and Kolts, and Deputy Fire Chief J. L. Murphy. Trustees Fleming, Beeres, Kearney, Thompson, Best and Superintendent M. J. "The final showings of the Paramount production of 'Big Brother,' which opened at the Orpheum Theatre Monday, will take place there this evening. It is an exceptional appealing and human tale, a picture of the immensely popular story of Rex Beach. Tom Moore, Raymond Hatton and Edith Roberts are featured in the principal roles. Allan Dwan supervised the production. Also five vaudeville acts. Tomorrow starts an all new show. On the program are six vaudeville acts and a picture that is bound to appeal, 'The Great Menace,' with a cast of exceptional merit and a dramatic expose of the drug evil.

State Senate Asks Modification

Of Volstead Act—For Beer, Righteousness and Other Things Says Senator Downing—Two Republicans Voted Wet.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 26.—The "wets" won a victory in the legislature today when the senate, with aid of two Republicans members, adopted the resolution of Senator Downing, memorializing congress to modify the Volstead act. The vote was 27 to 20. The Republicans supporting it were Senators George R. Fearon of Syracuse, and James L. Whitley of Rochester.

Senator Downing termed the resolution a measure for beer and light wine, righteousness, sobriety and temperance. He declared the same resolution was adopted by the 1923 legislature, but was sent to congress after that body had adjourned, and that the representatives of New York state should now be directed to call the attention of congress to the action of the 1923 legislature.

Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson, a Republican of Herkimer, who voted for the repeal of the Mullan-Gage state enforcement law last year said that congress knows how New York state stands on prohibition.

"All they need to do," he said, "is to consider who is governor of New York state."

The resolution will be defeated in the Republican assembly which body recently voted down a motion of Assemblyman Bloch, the Democratic leader, to force out of committee a similar measure.

Norwich's Bell For Senate House

Cornell Steamboat Company Adds Ancient Steamer's Bell To Valuable Collection Under Miss Westbrook's Care.

The Cornell Steamboat Company has presented to the trustees of the Senate House Association the bell of the Norwich, upon which has been inscribed:

THE BELL OF THE HUDSON RIVER SIDE-WHEEL STEAMBOAT NORWICH LAUNCHED 1836. Dismantled 1923.

Presented to the TRUSTEES OF THE SENATE HOUSE ASSOCIATION by the CORNELL STEAMBOAT COMPANY January 24th, 1924.

The Norwich was the flag-boat of the squadron that met the fleet headed by the Mohawk which brought the body of Governor George Clinton from Washington to its burial in the First Dutch Church yard at the time of the celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Kingston.

At the time she was dismantled, she was the oldest steamboat in commission in the world. The bell has been placed in the room of the Senate House in which John Jay, the first chief justice of the supreme court of the state under the constitution, revised that instrument, which repeatedly has been declared to be the best constitution of the state of New York, and the best of the original thirteen states.

The Senate House recently has been visited by the state architect, the state historian and the superintendent of state buildings, all of whom expressed their warm admiration of the collection gathered by the trustees of the association and of the manner in which they were cared for by Miss Westbrook, the custodian of the building. They stated to Judge Clearwater, the president of the Senate House Association, that there was no building in the state which contained a finer or more interesting collection of domestic utensils used prior to the War of the Revolution.

Among them is a large collection of wool and flax spinning wheels, of flax hackles, wool and flax distaffs, wool carding machines, candle moulds, butter bowls carved by the Esopus Indians from hickory trees, wooden mortars and pestles for pounding Indian corn and spices winnowing baskets, and a soapstone pot griddle stove. The bell of the Norwich rests upon the celebrated four-legged drop leaf table brought from Holland by one of the original settlers of Kingston. It was presented on the eleventh anniversary of the death of the late Samuel D. Coykendall, former president of the Cornell Steamboat Company.

KILLS WIFE BECAUSE SHE WOULDN'T KEEP HIM

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Philadelphia, March 26.—His refusal to work and mania for gambling which made him dependent upon his wife and her refusal to contribute further to his support, thus angering him, caused William J. Fischer, 23, to shoot his 24 year old wife, Matilda, and then attempt suicide, according to a theory held by police today. The theory of jealousy has been discarded, detectives learning that Mrs. Fischer's actions, although she was separated from her husband, warranted no suspicions of infidelity on his part.

Fischer shot his wife Monday night on a street in view of a score of persons while they were out strolling with a woman friend. He sent a bullet into his own brain, and was to undergo an operation today. His condition is grave.

Fischer met his wife while attending Stratford College, near Buffalo. She was a waitress in a student restaurant, and aided him financially in securing an education, the romance culminating in marriage.

Just before being taken to the operating room Fischer was questioned by Detective Harry Healy of the murder squad, but he refused to discuss the shooting, calling for his mother, Mrs. Annie Fischer of 1,003 William street, Buffalo.

Hits Ford and Drives Away

A Red speed wagon bound north on Tuesday afternoon smashed into the Ford runabout car of William Sissler at Morristown, N. J., on the Glenview hill, never stopping to look around or reporting the accident.

The impact caused the Ford car to turn over several times, completely wrecking it.

Sissler was cut severely about the right hand and also had several scratches on his face. The matter was reported to the police.

The Ford car had several 5 gallon tanks of gasoline stored on the running board and that there was not an explosion was a miracle. The license number of the Red speed-wagon was taken and the matter is now being investigated.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MOTHER HIPPOPOTAMUS

"My darling," said Mother Hippopotamus to her baby, "no one knows how much I love you."

Mother Hippopotamus was lying in her pool, her head partly under the water, but her nostrils were above so she could breathe the air, and her mouth was above so she could speak to her baby.

The baby was a very big baby, though Mother Hippopotamus thought it was a very cunning "little dear."

"They come to the zoo," Mother Hippopotamus went on, "and they think I'm big and ugly and that my skin is coarse and that I haven't any thoughts in my big head."

"I don't believe they think I feel very much. I don't believe they know what a loving, loving heart Mother Hippopotamus has."

"Oh, but they know so little! It is true I yawn right before them and show my great, craven-like mouth and jaw. But why shouldn't I yawn before them? I am not interested in them, and I do not find their society exciting. I can't talk their talk and they can't talk mine, and we don't understand each other by words or gestures."

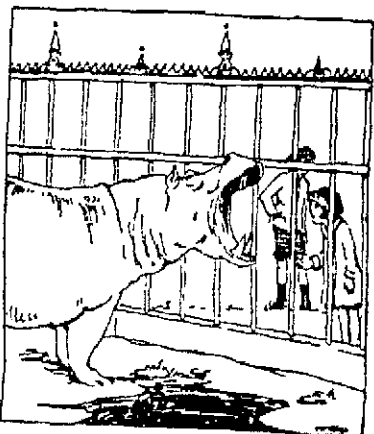

"Of course it may not be very polite to yawn right in some one's face. I notice that people cover up their mouths with their hands when they yawn. But if I tried to cover up my mouth I'd get all tangled up in myself, I'm sure. It would be much too much of a job."

"But eh, my darling, how a mother hippo does love her baby. There is no mother who loves her child any more, I'm sure."

"And why shouldn't we love our babies? What could be more beautiful than a hippopotamus baby? I wouldn't ask this question of a person, for the answer would not be correct according to my way of thinking."

"My answer would be: 'There is nothing more beautiful than a hippo baby.'"

Mother Hippopotamus looked and saw that her child was just about asleep. "I will soothe him and see that he goes sound, sound asleep," she said.

"Why Shouldn't I Yawn?"

So Mother Hippopotamus in her own hippopotamus fashion sang the Hippopotamus Lullaby:

Go to sleep, my dear little hippo.
Go to sleep, my own little pet.
And though other mothers boast of their babies,
You're the loveliest baby of all, I bet:

"I don't suppose," Mother Hippopotamus said to herself, "I should use slang like that before the dear—though I don't believe he heard it. But I pick up slang from humans and use it in my hippopotamus way."

"How different are the ways of humans from my ways. They do things in the daytime and seem to be rushing about them."

"But at night I become far more wide-awake and then it is I like to play and eat."

"When I lived in the African jungles I would sleep during the daytime and at night go marketing for my vegetables and such food."

"My thick skin used to be of great protection to me then as my legs are short and when I scraped by body against the ground it did not hurt because my skin was the right sort of a skin for the kind of traveling which I did."

"My skin, too, can send forth a kind of milky substance which floats about on my pool and my baby can drink of this, which a Hippo baby thinks is delicious."

"They have come and taken photographs of my baby. And I do not blame them. To me there is no more beautiful sight than a Hippo baby which I believe I have said before."

"Some one taking our picture said of the baby: 'He has a face only a mother could love.'"

"And I knew what he meant! He meant that only a mother could fully appreciate his great beauty and charm and loveliness."

"I understood! 'Ah, my baby is waking up now. I must whisper sweet nothings, as they say, in his ear.'"

GOOD THINGS FOR OCCASIONS

A salad is always a welcome dish, and the following dressing will be enjoyed on lettuce:

Russian Dressing.—Beat one-half cupful of French dressing, using six tablespoonfuls of oil with two of vinegar. Salt, paprika to taste. Add gradually this dressing into a half-cupful of mayonnaise, beating with an egg beater; then add two tablespoonfuls of chili sauce and fold in one-third of a cupful of cream, whipped. Season well with chopped green and red pepper, onion juice, parsley and chopped cucumber pickle.

Apricot Sponge.—Soften one tablespoonful of gelatin in a quarter of a cupful of cold water, then add one cupful of apricot pulp and juice, heated hot; add one-quarter cupful of sugar; stir until the mixture thickens, then fold in the whites of two eggs, stiffly beaten. Serve with whipped cream. Prunes are good used in the place of apricots.

Cheese and Chicken Dish.—Rub the yolk of one hard-boiled egg to a paste with a tablespoonful of olive oil or butter. Add one teaspoonful of salt, one of made mustard, one of granulated sugar and one-quarter teaspoonful of cayenne. Mix with two cupfuls of grated cheese and one cupful of chopped chicken. Press into scallop shells or ramekins and bake just long enough to become hot and the cheese melted.

Mustard.—Into four tablespoonfuls of dry mustard heat one teaspoonful of salad oil. Mix well, adding enough vinegar to make a paste. Then add a teaspoonful each of white pepper, onion juice and sugar. Beat hard and long to mix well, then bottle. This mustard equals the best nowadays in the market, at very little cost.

Another Salad.—Take one cupful each of cooked peas, peanuts finely minced and one-half cupful finely minced good-flavored pickles and the same of chopped ripe olives. Add a good well-seasoned boiled dressing, mix well and serve on lettuce.

King George Saves Time

King George's estate at Sandringham is the one spot in England where daylight saving is used the year around, and has been for more than fifty years. During all this time the clock have been kept half an hour ahead of Greenwich time, and the reason was to insure punctuality. King Edward, who had the reputation of never being late, even to tea, introduced the idea when he was prince of Wales and it was soon taken up by the nobles who lived in the community.

Hard Boiled

The waitress, very much out of sorts, saluted haughtily up to the table at which sat the grouchy customer. She slammed down the cutlery, snatched a napkin from a pile and tossed it in front of him.

Then, striking a furious pose, she glared at him.

"Whatcha want?" she snapped.

"Couple of eggs," growled the diner.

"How ya want 'em?"

"Just like you are."—Notre Dame Juggler.

Golden Spike

On May 10, 1880, the last spike of the railroad connecting the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific was driven. It was made of gold. The spike was first tapped by President Leland Stanford, of the Central Pacific, governor of California, next by Vice President T. C. Durant, of the Union Pacific and the rest of the driving was done by the chief engineers of both roads.

Can Any Knowledge Benefit You More Than This?

Is there anything of more value to you than that of knowing everything about the food you eat? How it is made—and from what it is made?

If you knew the source of certain foods, you probably would not eat them. Take, for example, the fat you use to fry your foods. As you know, the flavor of the food and its digestibility depend on the FAT used to fry the food.

Isn't it a pleasant thought to know that the tremendous popularity of Mazola is due to the fact that it is a pure vegetable oil from an edible source.

By edible source is meant that Mazola comes from the hearts of golden corn. If you like "corn-on-the-cob" you can't help liking Mazola.

Mazola is not a grease—and does not make fried foods greasy. It is a wholesome, pure fat—an oil that is so palatable and health-giving that many mothers give a spoonful or two to their growing children.

Every can of Mazola reaches you in a sealed-tight, sanitary tin, and you, the consumer, are the first person to touch its contents.

Once you try the modern method of frying with Mazola you will never go back to using grease.

AN IMPORTANT FACT

"Mazola is as delicious and good to eat as the corn from which it comes."

COL. STANLEY MAKING
49th CIRCUIT OF U. S.

America's greatest automobile traveler, Colonel Stanley, 70-year-old Indian fighter and trail blazer, is making his forty-ninth motor circuit of the United States. Still driving the fourth car produced by the Chandler factory, a 1913 model, Colonel Stanley is heading east through Texas, en route to San Francisco by way of New York and Boston. He belongs to 280 automobile clubs in various cities and his membership cards show his residence as "America."

"For almost half a century now I have been travelling through America," says the Indian scout. "I have crossed the continent on foot, on horse, in a wagon, and on a bicycle."

"When I adopted an automobile I felt my old comrades of the plains would no longer speak to me, but now I find that many of them also have cars."

"This is my forty-ninth trip of the country in my Chandler and, though somewhat the worse for wear, we are both good for many more."

During his travels Colonel Stanley has collected many rare photographs. Among his collection is what is said to be the last photograph taken of Francisco Pancho Villa, the Mexican rebel.

"I took many pictures on the Villa ranch," the colonel said. "One of my best was of his 4,000 ranch hands in military training in the fields."

The adventure of Colonel Stanley are hardly more remarkable than the Chandler car in which he has done his travelling. It is car No. 4 produced by the Chandler factory, and has covered a total of 272,000 miles, and according to its owner, it is "still running strong."

The colonel's greatest adventure occurred last June, when he was married to Miss Grace Raymond of Brooklyn, the ceremony being performed in Newark, N. J., and broadcasted by radio station WOR.

New York, March 26.—Young Stribling, Georgia school boy challenger for the world's light heavyweight title, began serious training today for his 12 round bout with Mike McGigue, the title holder, in Newark on Monday next. Stribling's workouts are conducted at the Newark Athletic Club. He rules a strong favorite to win the unofficial decision over McGigue but there is little betting on the outcome as Stribling must score a knockout to gain the title under the laws of New Jersey.

There was a moment of silence. Then—"Mamma," came the message in a shrill whisper, "Willie found a bed bug."

A Plain Girl

Who made herself the rage of New York
By Edna Wallace Hopper

Before me is my picture as a girl. Few girls would envy me my looks. But I made myself a famous beauty. And I've kept that beauty to a grand old age. I am still on the stage playing young girls' parts, and I still look a girl of 19.

I have helped many girls to careers of beauty. To many women I have brought decades of added youth. So I am convinced that millions can attain the benefits I got. I am going to help them do it. Now I am placing at every woman's call the very helps which made me what I am.

White Youth Clay
I found my greatest help in clay. Not in the crude and muddy clays so many still employ. My Youth Clay, perfected by French experts, is white and clean and dainty. It is a super-clay, based on 20 years of scientific study. No other clay that I know is nearly so efficient.

Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs or mars it. It brings that rosy afterglow which so amazes and delights. It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Many users, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years.

No girl or woman who once sees its results will ever go without it. The cost is 50c and $1.

My Youth Cream
My cold cream is another French creation. I call it my Youth Cream. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to foster the fine texture of the skin. You have never known a cold cream to compare with this.

I apply it after my clay. Also as a night cream. Also daytimes as a powder base. It feeds, softens and protects. Youth Cream will delight you. It costs 60c.

I use a liquid cleansing cream, called my Facial Youth. A famous Parisian beauty first told me about it. Now the greatest beauty experts elsewhere advise it, but they charge too high a price.

Facial Youth contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. All the dirt and grime and refuse come out with it. I have never found a method which cleans skins half so well. My Facial Youth costs 75c.

My Hair Youth

My hair is my greatest glory. It grows finer every year. I don't, falling hair or gray hair have ever come to me. Nor to any friend who has employed my method. These results are due to my Hair Youth. It is based on lifetimes of hair study. I apply it with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. There it combats the hardened oil and dandruff which clog the hair roots. It stimulates and fertilizes. Hair flourishes in such a well kept scalp. No man or woman who sees what Hair Youth does will ever go without it. The cost is 50c and $1 with eye dropper.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's beauty helps. With each one comes my Beauty Book, also a guarantee. No one can do you a greater kindness than to urge you to employ them. Go learn how much they mean. Edna Wallace Hopper, 335 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Crowd Assured For Williams

It is a long time since any lecturer has created the interest among the men of Kingston that Whiting Williams, who is to lecture at the high school auditorium tonight, under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs, for the benefit of the Kingston City Library has created. Judging by the late sale of tickets. The reason for this is that Mr. Williams will speak on the vital topic of the labor problem at home and abroad as he knows it from personal experience, plus the training of mind, intellect and heart that is his. Single tickets for this lecture at the high school tonight at 8 o'clock will be one dollar, with school children admitted for fifty cents. This will be the last lecture of the federation course, and everyone purchasing tickets, or a ticket, will in addition to hearing a decidedly worth-while lecture, be donating to the efficiency of the Kingston City Library.

NEW EVENING DRESSES SHOW GREAT SIMILARITY.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The Paris openings always add new zest and interest to the subject of fashions, just at a time when it is becoming a bit threadbare. This year, the critics seem delighted with what has been featured and laud the wearability of the models in general.

The great innovation is the appearance of the Directoire line, and this feature is the only one regarded with any misgivings as to its success. It is, however, only attempted for evening. The basic idea of the moment appears to be to look quite unlike your daytime self by night. For daywear, tailored lines and a most painstaking neatness and restraint in ornamentation are desired, while for evening we may be as picturesque as we wish, so why not the raised waistline if your figure can stand it? Juggling the waistline has been one of fashion's tricks practiced so long, that she is expert in the matter.

A charming apricot taffeta evening gown with full skirt worn at a recent smart dinner dance had three widely spaced rows of box pleated frayed taffeta ribbons in a harmonizing wood tone. A ribbon ruche about four inches in width outlined the small armholes, extending in a horseshoe curve almost to the waist at the back.

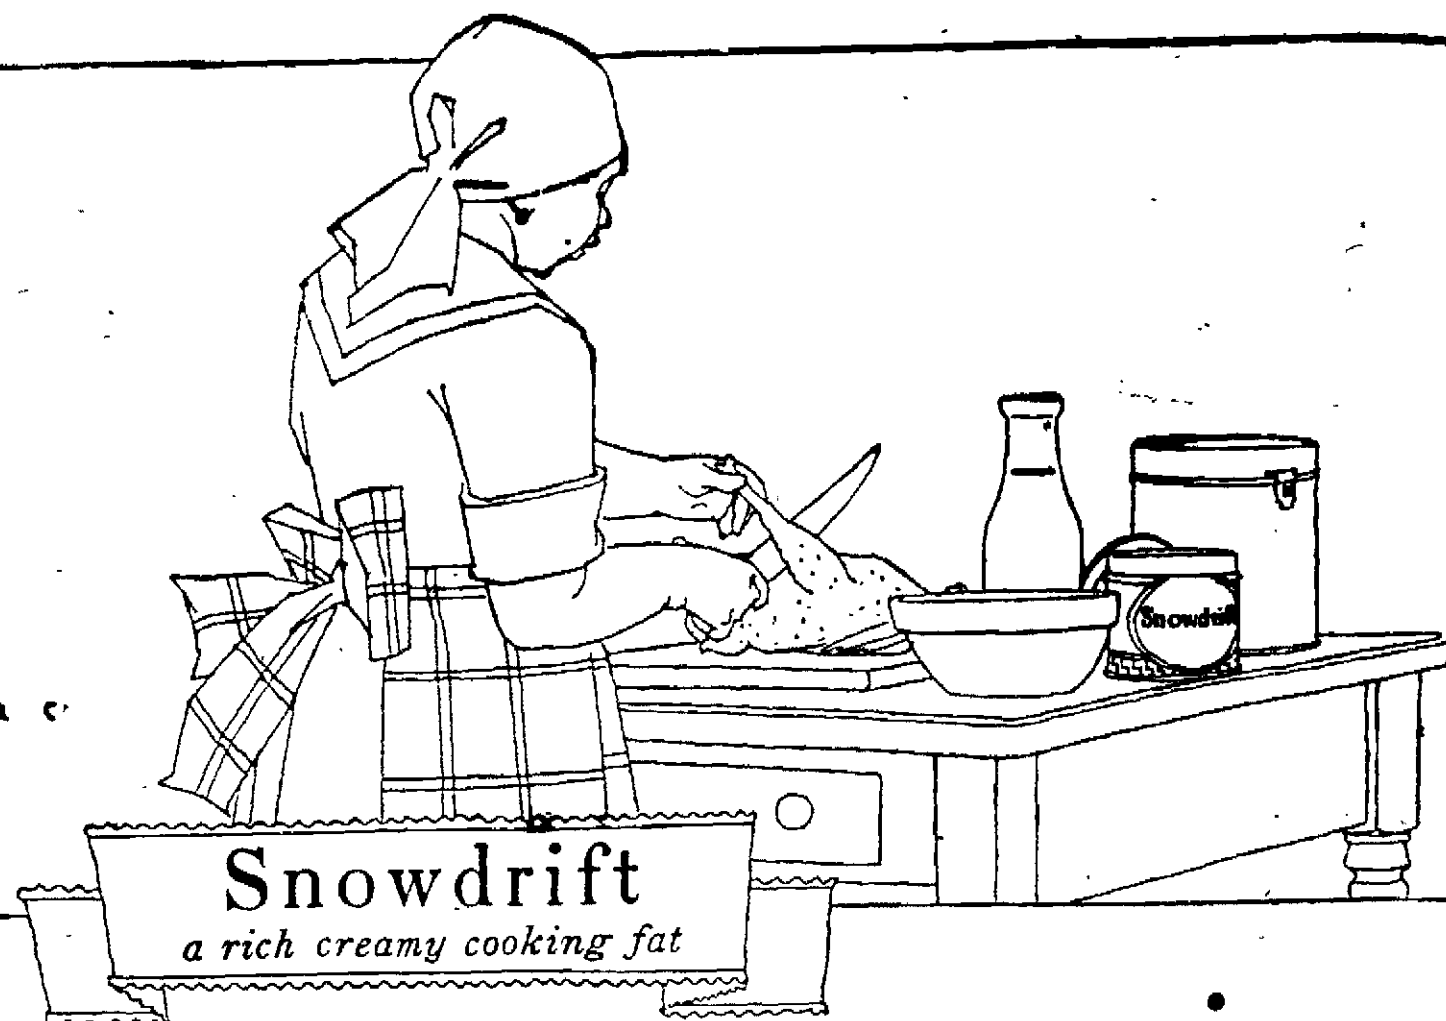

Evening dresses are so similar in most cases that an unusual detail registers instantly. White velvet has many sponsors mostly among women who have had more than they want of beads. Yet beads sparkle from almost every gown one meets, the favorite types being crystal huggies, pearl beads and rhinestones, with an occasional small colored type in a conventional flower design on satin. One such model meeting with great success is on straight chemise lines with small flowers in multi-colored beads scattered over the surface. Outlining brocades or striped silk with beads is another novel treatment.

ALLEN SANG AT COLLEGE OF CITY OF NEW YORK.

Charles Baldwin Allen, the Scottish baritone, who with J. Clarendon McClure, pianist, will give a song recital at the Y. W. C. A. on the evening of Tuesday, April 8, sang recently at the College of the City of New York when the Irish Musical Society of New York gave a big benefit concert there. Although Mr. Allen was not an Irishman, his singing charmed the audience which received his singing with enthusiasm. His two songs were an old Scottish song, "My Love She's But a Lassie Yet," and the Scotch national song, "Scots Wha Hae with Wallace Bled," both of which Mr. Allen will quite likely sing here. Among others besides Mr. Allen and Mr. McClure who appeared at this notable concert in New York, were Cecil Arden, of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Earle Tuckerman, of the Boston Opera Company, who will be the soloist at the last Flahja Trio concert here, Milo Mloradovich, of the Wagnerian Opera Company, Dorothy Jar-

Gum Chewing Aids the Teeth

You have the authority of doctors and dentists for this statement. Your own experience will prove it, if you will use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

The following quotations from a recent work on teeth and health are worth remembering:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

The busy man—or woman either—rarely has time to clean the teeth after eating. Yet they should be cleaned, and

THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with a twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and the inflamed glands. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs, colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement.

Plenty to Talk For Chevrolet

Sutliff, Inc., and Two-County Sales Organization Guests of Company Officials—"Chevy" Was Talked About, Sung About and In The Movies.

There may not be any talking Chevrolet, but that there are Chevrolet men who can talk was shown at the dinner given in the Advance Restaurant Tuesday evening by the Chevrolet Motor Co. of New York to Sutliff, Inc., of this city, Chevrolet dealers for Ulster and Greene counties. The guests numbered about 75 and included not only Sutliff, Inc., but all Chevrolet subdealers, salesmen and service men in the two counties, bankers with whom the dealers do business and last, but not least, the newly organized Chevrolet baseball nine in their neat but not gaudy, though snappy, new uniforms.

The baseball nine already has a well-rehearsed "college yell" which is almost as long as a sermon and much more vehement. It is expected to strike terror to the hearts of opponents on the diamond.

Then there was Paul Zucca and his tireless and melodious orchestra to furnish music and incite everybody to sing selections from the Chevrolet hymn book which contains original words in no way derogatory to the Chevrolet car set to tunes ranging from "Barney Google" to "Sweet Adeline." Following all these things including a substantial dinner, there was a movie thriller showing the progress of transportation from the time when there was none up to this day of automobiles and airplanes, with shop and mine scenes showing the making of an automobile from the raw material to the finished and scorching product.

Serious and informing addresses of great value to automobile salesmen and mechanics were made by C. L. Heyniger, sales manager of the company, J. B. McCollum, of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, J. W. Dorland of the exchange department, C. A. Smith of the local selling company. It was a big night for Chevrolet and for Sutliff, Inc., and their sales and service men.

The Chevrolet delegation who came up from Tarrytown and New York to represent the company in entertaining the local men was composed of C. L. Heyniger, J. B. McCollum, J. W. Dorland, C. A. Smith, Frank Johnston, L. B. Frailer and T. A. Cathoun. On arrival they were welcomed by the singing of "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here," and from the beginning until the end, which was a few minutes before midnight, there was something doing all the while and all of it was about Chevrolet, even the clown who turned cartwheels between the tables was a Chevrolet clown and turned Chevrolet wheels.

One outstanding feature of the musical program was the singing of the Chevrolet version of "Barney Google" as a duet by Mr. Anderson of Pine Hill and Mr. Sutliff, which was a musical miracle.

Gay Shawls Again in Milady's Favor

Colorful Products of Kashmir in Fashion for Evening Wear.

Still another shawl is now returning to fashion along with the so popular paisley, says a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. This is the Kashmir, or cashmere shawl known so well to our grandmothers during the last century. At that time cashmere shawls were the vogue in France, being introduced with much success with the first Napoleon and continuing in fashion until the last one, at the end of the Franco-Prussian war.

Now once again their great beauty of intricate patterns and color has turned attention back to India, where the original Kashmir shawls were made for the courts, long centuries before the fashion was introduced into Europe. The basis of their excellence, one finds, is the fine, soft underfur called pashm or pashmina, of the shawl goat which inhabits the elevated regions of Tibet. From this material was woven and embroidered the sumptuous garments and shawls that were to become known all over the world, with many of them finding their resting places among the costly possessions of museums and collectors.

There are two main types of shawls, says Anne Sessions Cushing in "Arts and Decorations": one woven in small pieces and put together with the needle so perfectly that in many cases the joining is wholly concealed and the shawl embroidered or pashmina woven in one piece and of plain or self-colors. This latter type may be embroidered in one piece, embroidered over a foundation piece and in many colors, or embroidered in pieces and put together with embroidery concealing the piecing.

The material of which Kashmir shawls are made, the dyes, the technical skill of the weavers, whose trade goes from father to son back to the dim beginnings of the caste system, are all unique, but last, and really most important of all, is the perfection of the design.

In their textile designs each object is painted in its own proper color, but without shades of color or light and shade of any kind, so that the ornamentation looks perfectly flat. In this way the natural surface of any object decorated is preserved. This, added to the harmony and distribution of coloring, is the great charm of Indo-Persian art.

In woven or embroidered shawls there is usually a line around each motif which harmonizes with the ground. When large ornaments are used they are filled with most minute and exquisite details, as in the cone patterns or so-called "palm" pattern in Kashmir shawls.

Whether through gifts of Napoleon to Josephine, or, more probably, a natural interest aroused in both English and French to adopt these garments of luxury brought to notice by new trade interests, Kashmir shawls became the rage and commanded great prices. In this period, 1820-'71, the weavers at Srinagar and elsewhere in the Province of Kashmir numbered many thousands—from 16,000 to 20,000 looms being in operation.

Then the demand ceased and now, in the cycle of fashion, copies of the great art fabrics of Indo-Persia again are appearing for the decoration of modern woman.

Knitted Sports Suit Designed for Spring

This knitted sports suit of peach color, a new spring model, is adorned with an embroidered design done in green and rose.

Printed Taffetas

Printed taffetas are once more with us. They are lovelier than ever, with their flowered patterns, either in delicate little nosegays or scattered buds.

New Spring Overblouse Shown in Suit Effect

A new overblouse in suit effect, this smart gray silk costume is trimmed in red crepe canton and finished with huge pearl buttons.

Costume Blouses in Satin and Georgette

Not one stroke behind the designers of tunic dresses are the creators of blouses. If a tunic dress is good there are times when a tunic blouse may be better, according to their philosophy. They put them forth under the name of costume blouses if the blouse be long enough to warrant it, or as overblouses if the peplum part is a little shorter. In either case the design is apt to be rather elaborate in beading or other trimming, although seldom so in cut. Frocks are more elaborate in the cut of the skirt or the drape than in the waist, and this leaves the blouses in the same relative position. The cut therefore remains simple, but colors and elaboration are unlimited.

The lingerie blouse comes back into use with certain changes and the crepe de chine blouse continues as one of the most useful adjuncts in the wardrobe. The tailored blouse is a thing in itself separate and of an entirely different order. For the semi-tailored type of blouse there are some interesting models made of printed crepes and novelty materials trimmed with suede collar and cuffs, a very good blouse to wear with the tailored suit for town.

In these blouses that are neither costume nor sports blouses one also will find the blouse with the deep jabot ruffle which trims a suit and adds so much to the effect, particularly now that the director's styles are again being put forth. Latticework trimming in the same fabric is a form to which many makers are partial for crepe models.

An unusual blouse of crepe is original in its use of false pockets for elaboration. A light tone silk faces triangular flaps which open as if a pocket were placed between. One of these pocket arrangements is placed either side of the waist and on one side a slash extends to the bottom of the blouse with tiny buttons holding the hip band snugly about the figure.

Knitted Wool Frocks and Scarfs Popular

A very likable one-piece frock is of domestic design in knitted wool. The skirt is woven to resemble plaits and is plain white. The blouse part is in a fine check, various colors being used with the rolling revers in white brushed wool. The fronts of the blouse are lapped widely over so that they stay in place at all times and no buttons or fastenings are necessary. Sleeves in this model are long with a tiny roll cuff of the brushed wool completing a very useful and chic dress for morning wear or a walk on the beach.

With a continued influx of models for all times of the day showing the scarf in many forms it is to be expected that the use of scarfs for sports wear would continue; also, whether the scarf be part of the sweater or blouse or otherwise. Sports coats are almost sure to use the scarf arrangement of collar thrown over one shoulder. Scarfs worn independently are of many designs and are seen in short length, used as an Ascot, or in very long ones, even with a ruffle at the bottom. Scarfs of silk have plaited ruffles. By silk, foulard or some other flat silk is meant in which plaiting may be practical, or they may be finished with fringe or shells.

An exceedingly novel scarf from Paris is of Scotch plaid gingham of red and blue. It is very wide to make up for the light weight, and, of course, this applies also to the scarfs of this silk.

Bags for Evening

Cloth of silver envelope bags are an excellent choice for evening wear, as they are sure to blend with any color scheme. They come in various shapes and sizes.

Sports Duds Now Emphasize Colors

White Is Relieved by Wisesome Shades; Novelty Flannel Is Chic.

White unrelieved by any color is evidently not in the mode, according to the designers of sports clothes, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald. That those put out for use in the South settled many points in this department of the wardrobe does not deter the makers from expressing many new ideas and details which are decidedly interesting. That color combined with white shall be part of every sports costume, or for any other costume designed for country wear, seems to be a feature with which they like to dally.

The sleeveless jacket is one of the means used to introduce the required color note, and pipings and bindings are responsible for another form of treatment. Contrary to custom last year, the hat is more frequently white and the color used as part of the design of the dress or suit instead of the plain white dress and hat of bright color. It must be admitted that one of the difficulties with this ruling is that the white hat is not so apt to be becoming as one with some tone. An effective one seen is of Roman stripe, and apparently will be well received later in the season.

White flannel, seemingly a material of undiminished popularity, is used for the foundation of a suit, with a colorful novelty flannel used for trimming the skirt and for the sleeveless jacket. The novelty flannel is so delightful that it merits a description by itself. It is a form of the tufted material which has been seen in one tone and used for winter suits and coats. This particular sample is a white ground covered with red, blue and yellow tufts, expressed in dots, triangles and other figures.

Heavy crepes which are being used extensively for sports and country frocks are seen with matching jackets, sleeveless usually, in knit wool weaves. One can imagine that this mode will be popular and lead to further development than the few charming examples already noted in the shops and by sketches from abroad.

Many Chic Belts Are Among Spring Styles

Belts are assumed to presuppose shirtwaists and the old-time waistline. But these are now almost obsolete, and a belt has become a part of the one-piece frock, to hold in ever so slightly the straight coat dress, chemise dress or coat dress. Some most artistic belts have been fashioned of leather, hand-painted and illuminated, of elastic, beaded in a pattern to represent the coat of a serpent.

Other leather belts are stitched in silks or wools, or studded with steel, jet or colored china and glass beads. Some are of silk, prettily embroidered, some are all of beads in Oriental patterns, in cut-steel or rhinestones, while the newest extravaganzas, straw, embroidered with woolen flowers, is quite the rage.

Skirts Shorter Than Ever for Paris Women

Cables from Paris fashion openings received by New York dress manufacturers confirms early season hints that skirts are to be much shorter. Some say the new skirts will be cut "barely below the knee."

A New York resident buyer with an office in Paris, said, however, that American styles this spring will not follow the French designs too closely. Panel effects will make shorter skirts necessary, he added, but the American models will not be too extreme.

New Rubberized Raincoat

In a rainy twilight it gives one rather a shock to see a figure come down the street clad apparently in a voluminous and none too heavy night robe of pale material. Nearer approach, however, proves that the garment is one of the new thin rubberized silk raincoats, in a fetching pastel shade.

Charities Aid Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the state committee on tuberculosis and public health of the State Charities Aid Association, will be held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York city, on Friday, May 2, according to an announcement made today, following the March meeting of the executive committee of the state committee. This meeting attracts public health workers from all parts of the state.

The committee's field work is New York state, exclusive of Greater New York, and 52 of the 87 counties in this territory are represented on the committee. In addition, there are 28 members-at-large, citizens of prominence, particularly identified with public health or other forms of social service. As a body, this group represents very largely the unofficial workers in the public health field in the state.

Most of these local committees were organized as part of the anti-tuberculosis movement. Very rapidly, however, they have broadened their scope until they now include extensive public health programs.

The work of the state committee and its local organizations is advanced entirely by the annual sale of Christmas Seals. The most important purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the work of the state committee and its affiliated branches for the current year, and to adopt a program of activities for the fiscal year, beginning October 1, next to be carried on with the funds derived from the sale of Christmas Seals during the holiday season of 1924.

From reports received to date on the 1923 Christmas Seal sale, the state committee again leads all other state tuberculosis organizations in both gross and per capita sales.

both gross and per capita sales. The amount thus far realized in the territory of the state committee is $428,528, which exceeds the record of any previous year. Some further returns are to be received between now and April 1, and it is estimated that the final total sale will aggregate $435,000.

Why Pay the Penalty of Lying Awake?

MANY people spend hours at night, restlessly tossing from side to side, waiting for sleep. All because they drink coffee with their evening meal.

If the caffeine in coffee irritates your nervous system and keeps you awake when you should be asleep, recuperating your energies, why not stop coffee and drink Postum?

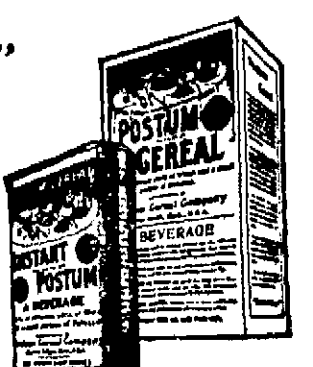

Postum is a pure cereal beverage, absolutely free from caffeine or anything that can disturb health and comfort. Many prefer Postum for its delightful aroma and flavor.

If you want to know the truth, change to Postum for a month or so, and see how much better you will sleep and feel.

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

Building Wisely and Well includes Modern, Sanitary, Plumbing

Failing to realize this fact will inevitably prove to be a costly error. Bear in mind, too, that the best is always cheapest in the end. Trying to save a few dollars on your bathroom may finally cost a great deal more in doctor's bills.

Be sure that only good, modern plumbing and good, modern fixtures go into your building. Our show room displays will help you make a wise selection.

Weaver Brought Smallpox Here

Negro Came Here From Elizabeth, N. J., and Then Tamed to East Kingston to Visit Friends—Under Quarantine at Washburn Brickyard.

Frank Weaver, 28 years old, a negro, came to Kingston from the home of James Allen, 61 Pine street, Elizabeth, N. J., Friday afternoon, afflicted with the smallpox. Before the disease was discovered he had circulated around the city here and had visited many of his negro friends on the Washburn brickyard at East Kingston.

Saturday while visiting some of his friends at East Kingston they became suspicious when they saw the outbreak on his face and notified Dr. Krom of Saurter's, who examined Weaver and was of the opinion that he was afflicted with smallpox. Dr. Krom immediately notified Dr. Henry Van Hovenberg of this city, health officer of the town of Ulster, who promptly placed Weaver under quarantine in a house on the brickyard. The Washburn yard has assigned a man to guard the quarantined house.

Dr. Van Hovenberg after taking what precautions were necessary then notified Dr. Laidlaw of the state health department who had an expert come to East Kingston from Albany to examine Weaver. He confirmed the diagnosis made by Drs. Krom and Van Hovenberg.

Today Dr. Laidlaw, Dr. Van Hovenberg and Dr. Godfrey of the state health department visited Weaver at East Kingston to learn of his movements. He said that he had been taken ill in Elizabeth and Thursday noticed the lumps on his face. He left there Friday and went to New York city and came to Kingston on a West Shore train arriving here at 5:05 o'clock that afternoon.

As he was hungry he visited a fish market on Broadway where he obtained something to eat. He then secured a taxi and was driven to East Kingston where he visited friends. Saturday he also spent the day circulating among friends on the brickyard.

Today the physicians vaccinated about seventy men, and also a large number of women and children at East Kingston. Dr. Laidlaw said that he and Dr. Connelly, the city health officer, would be busy this afternoon endeavoring to learn with whom Weaver came in contact with while in Kingston Friday afternoon. The taxi driver will also be vaccinated and any person who was with Weaver while he was here.

It is not expected that the disease will spread owing to the prompt action that has been taken.

Women and The Income Tax

New York state income taxes of $1,387,512 were paid by women with $100,000 or larger incomes, in separate returns, in 1922, on incomes of more than fifty-one million dollars, according to figures just released by the state tax commission.

"It is interesting to note," said Director Thomas M. Lynch, of the state income tax bureau, today, "that in this group were 18 unmarried women who were the heads of families and each supporting at least one dependent. They reflected income of over four million dollars, of which $250,000 was from personal services. In the class of single females not heads of families, there were 105 who paid taxes of $743,475 on close to thirty-four million dollars income, out of which the personal service payments were $750,000. Only one out of every two of these taxpayers had a dependent.

"To the case of married women who filed returns apart from their husbands there were 114 with tax payments of $539,814, a total income of $20,300,000, and $293,400 from personal services. There were only 92 dependency exemptions claimed on these returns, or less than one dependent for each of these taxpayers. These amounts are in addition to incomes of married women included in their husbands' returns.

"When we start to figure the effect of the recent amendment requiring returns only by married persons with incomes of $2,500," he continued, "it will be observed that none of these unmarried women are affected by its provisions. Single persons, men and women who earned 1,000 or more in 1922, must still file returns even though they receive the benefit of the increased $2,500 head of a family exemption on net incomes of $5,000 or less.

"In all cases both married persons and heads of families now take out $400 as the dependency exemption."

Snowstorm Broke Here.

The snow storm that the weather man had been forecasting for the past week or so finally materialized this morning when residents who awoke early found that there was a light fall of snow on the ground. The snow continued falling at intervals throughout the day but melted as fast as it fell. There were also snow flurries reported along the line of the Ulster & Delaware railroad in the Catskills.

The DAIRY

MORE MILK USED IF OF HIGHEST GRADE

The dairyman is interested in the greater consumption of milk and he is also interested in the production of high-grade milk, as it is a contribution to increased sales of his product. In the production of high-grade milk it is necessary for us to take every precaution because milk very readily absorbs odors from the barn and elsewhere and is quite easily contaminated by bacteria. If milk were consumed within a few hours after production, we would not have a very difficult problem. The fact is, however, that our milk is often transported long distances and is not consumed until twenty-four to forty-eight hours after production. This necessitates great care in handling the product.

The usual methods employed of checking on the sanitary condition of a milk supply are the sediment test and the bacteria count. Marked sediment in the milk indicates that it was produced and cared for under unclean conditions. When a high bacteria count is found, it is taken as an indication of either old milk or milk produced under unclean conditions. A low bacteria count is desired because it denotes sanitary conditions all along the way from the cow to the consumer's table.

It is wrong to believe that high quality milk cannot be produced unless expensive barns and equipment are employed. High quality milk can be produced under average farm conditions, but it requires precautions each and every day.

The final bacteria count in milk is the sum of the bacteria coming from the udder of the cow, plus the number gaining admission after the milk is drawn from the udder and the natural increase that has taken place before the count is made.

The means for the dairyman then to employ is to cut down to the very minimum the number of bacteria gaining admission to the milk after it is drawn. This is simplified if the cows are clean and kept in a sanitary barn. Also, this count is reduced by handling the milk only in sterilized containers and exposing it to the air the shortest possible time. To cut down the natural increase of bacteria, we should keep the milk under conditions of low temperature. This has a controlling effect upon the multiplication of the bacteria.—B. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Feeding Dairy Calf Is Important Bit of Work

Always weigh the feed.

Avoid overfeeding, overfeeding is sure to result in scours.

Be scrupulously clean. Clean pens, clean bedding and clean feed in vessels that are washed and sterilized daily are absolutely necessary.

Give them plenty of clean water to drink.

In feeding milk or gruel use a thermometer; don't guess at the temperature. Between 80 and 100 degrees is about right.

Watch the condition of the calf's bowels. At first appearance of scouring or offensive odor, reduce the feed and treat for scours.

Be regular in the various operations performed in caring for the calves.

Tie the calves up so they can be fed separately.

Give them as much exercise as possible.

What Mangels Are Worth as Feed for Dairy Cows

Mangels are a good feed for dairy cows. About 90 per cent of the dry material in them is digestible. According to experiments that have been carried on, when such feeds as bran or oats are worth $30 a ton, mangels are worth about $4 a ton. When hay is worth $18-20 mangels are worth around $3 per ton. It requires about two tons of mangels to equal one ton of corn silage.

Cows weighing 1,000 pounds may each be fed from 50 to 60 pounds or more of mangels daily.

The best method of storing mangels for winter use is in well-ventilated pits or root cellars.

Dry Cows Need as Much Care as When Producing

The old practice of turning cows into the stall feed in winter after they go dry is no longer followed by the wise farmer or dairyman. Stockmen have learned dry cows need as much care in winter as they do when they are producing. The end of the lactation period is when cows need good feed and extra care to build up the body in preparation for another season. Give them good, warm shelter at night, at least.

Many Dairymen Neglect Ventilation of Stable

Many dairymen disregard ventilation. Some barns are built tightly and make no provision for circulation of air. The average cow requires about 60 cubic feet of air per minute. A flue one foot by two feet, inside measurements, will remove the foul air given off by ten cows. The size necessary for larger and smaller herds of dairy cattle may be figured on the same basis.

An Even Break

It is occasionally a doubtful and pondered choice: To go to the party and pretend you enjoy it or stay at home and be lonesome.

Trout Season Almost Here

The display in the show window of Warren's Sporting Goods store on Fair street brings the anglers of Kingston to a halt. Although the snow in the mountains is slowly melting the streams are not particularly high and within a short time the angler will be conning boots and with rod and reel seek out the trout streams of the mountains. In the Warren window is a complete line of rods, reels, line and fly with the other necessities and accessories of the angler. The display brings back to mind the fact that winter has almost passed and the open season will soon be here bringing with it the usual "fish" stories.

The trout season opens Saturday, April 5.

Three Fights for Jersey City

Villa-Genaro, Leonard-Walker and Dempsey Against Firpo or Gibbons This Summer.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, March 26.—Three fights, of a magnitude sufficient to attract the financial attention of the innocents without undue blame or liability, are planned by Tex Rickard for his Jersey City arena during the impending outdoor season.

The first of these will occur on or about Memorial Day and will feature Pancho Villa and Frankie Genaro, respective world's and American fly-weight champions; the second will see Benny Leonard and Mickey Walker collaborate in a catch weight enterprise, contiguous to July four, with Walker's welter-weight title at stake; the third, it is hoped, will bring together Jack Dempsey and either Firpo or Tom Gibbons in September.

This is the sum total of the writer's present information of affairs of the fist. Rickard probably will confirm the program when the moment is more propitious.

All three bouts are what is technically known as "naturals." That means they will intrigue the customers without artificial aid, something after the manner of the Dempsey-Carpenter and Dempsey-Firpo affairs.

The fact that friend Luis is named as an alternate with Gibbons is illuminating. It indicates that Rickard, for one, is inclined to place some credence in Firpo's plans to retire. The Latin, of a certainty, will be Dempsey's next opponent if they can persuade him to enter the ring with Jack again, which is doubtful. If not, Dempsey and Gibbons will be tossed into the arena in a return bout for the benefit of the local milk fund.

The Leonard-Walker attraction has been cooking over a slow flame ever since Benny made a mess out of Lew Tendler last summer. Leonard, a great concenter of local gates, now has no logical rival among the lightweights and must look beyond that division for action. Walker in the flight immediately above and a really representative champion, is the sole choice. They can whisper the announcement of the date and the merry villagers will riot at the gates.

Villa and Genaro also will please the good citizens but on a more minor scale, largely because fly-weights are not so highly esteemed. They have met three times and Genaro has yet to fail to finish in front. Yet, Villa is the accredited champion of the world. Hence the "natural."

Rickey Opines Cards May Win

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Brantford, Ont., March 26.—"I have one of those ball teams this year," orated Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals "that's likely to hop off on the right foot and spill things all around the league. There have been such clubs and the Cardinals seem to be one of them this spring."

Thus the owner-manager, who hasn't any regular catcher and is touring the south trying to discover one, expresses his optimism. Branch, as we see things, is just about where he left off last fall, with perhaps not quite so good a club. His pitching figures to be pretty good—very good perhaps—if two or three of the boys can start winning regularly and thereby escape the derelictions and bull pen work that are part of the Cardinals system.

Rickey visited the Boston camp and wanted to swap Milton Stock, his hold out third baseman, for Mickey O'Neil, star Brave catcher. He almost came to terms about several other backstops.

The receiver troubles started when Rickey gave Eddie Almsmith the air. Edward was too temperamental. He was good enough for the Giants to snap up, however. The Cardinals were depending on Clemons to do practically all their catching, but he wrenched his knee and is hobbling around on crutches.

Rickey has a notion he can manufacture catchers. He tried for two years with McCurdy and is still trying. He's working now on young Holm, who was a pretty good outfielder for Syracuse last year.

Rickey's infield, unless he trades or signs up Stock, will be a bit weaker than it was. Ray Blades, who has the makings of a star, will be parked on third, but it will take a while for him to get him up to the Stock standard. Doc Lavin is having his usual brilliant spring at shortstop, the great Hornsby is playing and hitting in his own particularly brilliant way and Bottomley is one of the best of the young first basemen, and one of the game's big hitters.

The outfield looks all right. Jack Smith, Hay Myers and Max Flack are three veterans, but still very good ballplayers. Young Mueller and Blades perform well.

Rickey's pitching department should be good. Willie Doak, spitballer, is in perfect shape. Last year he had troubles with his arm. Jess Haines is as good as the next right hander, and Wes Willie Sherdel is one of the niftiest southpaws extant. Rickey is also pinning lots of hope on John Davis Stuart, who hopped into fame last fall by winning both ends of a double header against the Boston Braves.

Barfoot, Dyer and North are holdovers. Allan Southern also has been brought back and rates well.

The Cardinals, if they collect a catcher, have enough stuff to be dangerous.

GLASCO BOY IS ARRAIGNED AT SAUGERTIES

Joseph Tiano, aged sixteen, of Glasco, was arraigned in police court, Saugerties, late Tuesday afternoon before Police Justice Clyde F. Gardner, charged with assault and battery. On complaint of James V.
